STUDY REVEALS WAY AHEAD FOR DOCKLANDS SOCIAL SERVICES PROVIDERS

A study of social care provision in dockland areas of Tower Hamlets, Southwark and Newham has just been completed.

The study, carried out over a 12 month period by Price Waterhouse Management Consultants, reviews the current levels of care provided in each area and assesses future requirements in the light of significant population increases generated by the Docklands redevelopment.

Funded by the London Docklands Development Corporation, the report was commissioned in collaboration with the three local authorities. The dockland areas will undoubtedly see major social changes over the next ten years and the report will prove invaluable in helping local authorities plan ahead for the provision of vital services for which they, as statutory providers, are responsible.
