DEVELOPERS UNVEIL HOUSING PLANS FOR WEST SILVERTOWN URBAN VILLAGE

Proposals for up to 1200 new homes on the south side of Royal Victoria Dock have been received by the London Docklands Development Corporation (LDDC).

Four developers - a consortium of Barratt, Fairclough and Ideal Homes; Bellway Homes; a consortium now known as the Royal Victoria Dock Consortium and Wimpey Homes, have submitted design and planning proposals for the 28 acre housing led phase of West Silvertown Urban Village on LDDC and Tate & Lyle land.

The LDDC will invite financial submissions from a shortlist of the developers by early May, following consultation with local tenants and residents.

The design proposals all assume that the go-ahead is given to Newham Council's proposal to demolish the 264 dwelling Barnwood Court tower blocks, to the west of the site, subject to a ballot of tenants in May.

The LDDC is scheduled to select a developer by the end of July, with a start on site in the Autumn.

Note to Editors

1. Colour visuals of the four schemes are available from the Press Office.
2. The first section of West Silvertown Urban Village, 85 homes for rent by local people by Peabody Trust, was launched last month.
3. The Urban Village will be built in phases over 8 to 10 years on a 78 acre site creating a wide range of homes for up to 5000 people along with shops, recreational facilities, amenities and workplaces. Development is being carried out by a partnership of public and private sectors, led by landowners including the LDDC, London Borough of Newham, Tate & Lyle and the Peabody Trust. The Urban Village is backed by Government through its Private Finance Initiative.
